...of a defensive stand against a Russian attack. The Germans put a considerable number of intercepting fighters into the air in an effort to bring down the Soviet bombers Thursday night, but the Russian planes were able to place their bombs effectively.

The Germans also were active last night, attempting to bomb the Soviet army camps at Gorki, 200 miles northeast of Moscow, for the fourth time in five nights. Russian fighters and anti-aircraft gun fire scattered most of the raiders over the approaches to Gorki, but some reached the city and started fires in residential areas. At least one German plane was shot down, but no Soviet aircraft was lost.

Ground action remained largely static.

Two Years Ago...

THEY HELPED SAVE OUR LIVES!

When you read of individual heroes throwing themselves under the treads of a tank, remember that two years ago a whole nation hurled itself beneath the greatest war machine in history — and by so doing changed the course of the whole war and of our very existence.

That nation was Greece — first of all the small nations to say "No!" Greece — which astounded the world by throwing back the Italian invader past his starting point, inflicted tens of thousands of Axis casualties, and revived the world's hope when many thought that all was lost. And it was Greece, do not forget, when the whole might of the Nazis as well as the Italian army was ranged against it, again cried "No!" rather than accept a dishonorable peace . . . and thus gave the United Nations precious weeks and months that changed the course of the whole war.

THEY NEED OUR HELP

Since last summer, shipments of breadstuffs have gone to Greece by international agreement. These shipments, made possible by the response to appeals such as this, a response by generous Canadians who remembered, have saved literally hundreds of thousands of lives. BUT . . . if help stops now, that work will have been in vain, and virtually the whole Greek nation will surely perish.

War in This War

By W. F. Kernan (Colonel, U.S. Army)

Author of
"DEFENCE WILL NOT WIN THE WAR"

INSTANT XIII.

Estimate of Germany's Situation

And now, having completed our strategic reconnaissance, we return to the red-hot problem of defeating Hitler in the field.

Hitler (as pointed out in the foregoing chapters), extended himself when he opened his campaigns in Poland, Norway, Belgium, Holland, France, Yugoslavia, Greece, and, considering the peculiar Prussian tactics he used, there never was a time in any of these campaigns when a strategic of the first class could not have forced upon him a battle under conditions that would have been adverse though not necessarily disastrous for him. All we can say of such a hypothetical battle is that it would have led up to the winning of other battles, one of which would certainly have been decisive, so that, in the long run, Hitler's goose would have been pretty thoroughly cooked.

So much for the "valentine" of an army which, in ignorance of strategy, laid itself wide-open to attack in the carefully articulated Prussian tactics.

Now when we come to the over-extension which Hitler brought about by his Russian campaign we are immediately confronted by a problem which the German army did not solve by itself. If the United Nations will only, before it is too late, throw it into the realm of strategy.

Some suspicion of this truth is already beginning to trouble our military and political strategists and military experts who hailed with loud hallooing the news of our landing on the North African coast. It was thought that the mere presence of an American Expeditionary Force in the Mediterranean, with the superiority of American armaments, would be sufficient to make Mussolini topple and Hitler tremble.

VOICES NOT LACKING

Voices were not lacking calling upon Hitler to abdicate, or exhorting the Italian people to lay down their arms, and a whole host of amateur strategists and professional propagandists immediately went to work on the Mediterranean front, each selecting his own favorite invasion point and then sitting back to watch the triumph march of the American Army of Occupation into Hitler's headquarters.

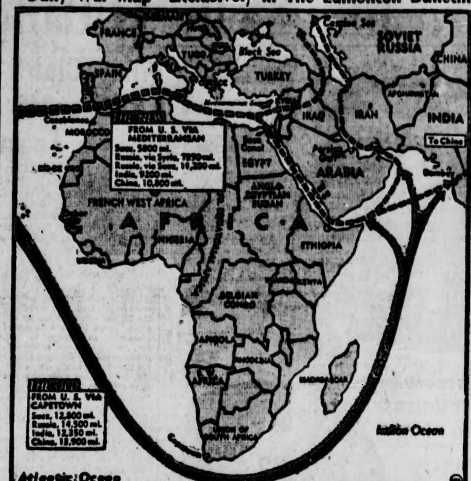

Even our political strategists further into the blue emphasis of the American and established her second front, began to consider how the peace would be arranged.

TACTICAL OPERATION

And yet, nothing happened except what Hitler had intended—namely, a tactical operation. Kierulff, strengthened by his forces. We brought in tanks, men, guns, airplanes. They brought in the same thing. The Americans prepared to attack tactically, and sweep the Germans from the North African coast. The Germans prepared to defend tactically and absorb the American forces in the sands of Africa exactly as they had absorbed the offensive action of the British Empire in the past two years.

The German's equilibrium in ordinary operation still either (1) the war of attrition is won by Hitler and a more normal economy is set up in Europe after the pay-off, or (2) the Nazi economic equilibrium is upset along with the Nazi military equilibrium by a successful invasion of Europe.

The submarine threat will suffice to prevent the sea blockades successful functioning as a long-term strategy. The Western Stock Exchange is in annual convulsion today, and a revision of the present economic situation is being called for.

Germany can continue to meet the attacks of the United Nations successfully as long as these attacks are delivered on the perimeter of her European domain for the only means available: an invasion of Europe which will cut off stretch after stretch of coast and pin him more and more tightly into his beloved heart-land of Prussia.

Hitler's pool. Here again our thinking is hindered by misinterpretation of the concepts of limited war and we fail to take into consideration the enormous pool of manpower at Hitler's disposal. For one thing, it has been shown conclusively that the figure of 700,000 men from his annual reserves is not a realistic figure.

Serious Problem

Gardiner Reveals 30,000 Male Farm Workers Left Canada Farms in Past Year

OTTAWA, June 12.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in the House of Commons Friday night that 30,000 male farm workers left the farm in the year ending March 31 against 90,000 in the previous year.

Speaking after opposition members had said farm labor was a serious problem, the minister said the government had taken effective action to retain men in agriculture. He agreed there were cases of hardship but a large proportion of Canada's 700,000 farmers had made no complaint.

C. E. Johnston (N.D. Bow River), said if so many men were leaving the farm, it would mean a serious depletion of certain products. Mr. Gardiner said he had been told there should be no shortage of things to do with some products which were being rationed and were piling up in the country.

The agriculture minister's estimate came before the house last evening, after the house had completed consideration of the war department estimates of $1,615,000 for the fiscal year 1943-44.

MUNITIONS PROGRAM
On Thursday, it was the discussion of the munitions department program for the fiscal year.

As the house completed examination of estimates for the three arm services, which have been before it for a month, Gordon Grapdon, Progressive Conservative house leader, said he wished to place on the house record his recognition of the part played by the men in the house and the remembrance of those who have sacrificed their lives.

Mr. Grapdon said he was well to reflect on the "giant contribution" of the men and women in the service. He said he was glad to see no action was neglected to take care of the house.

Earlier Friday the house heard a review by Munitions Minister Howe of his department's work in the past year.

Navy Minister Macdonald later said he was well to reflect on the "giant contribution" of the men and women in the service. He said he was glad to see no action was neglected to take care of the house.

Notice is hereby given that men employed in certain specified lines of civilian employment, who are in age and marital classes already designated under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, must report for interview not later than June 15, 1943, to an Employment and Selective Service Office.

E. OBLIGATIONS OF EMPLOYERS.
When directed to accept employment, subsequent to the first interview referred to, men described in Paragraphs B and C above are required by the Regulations to follow the direction given.

G. Transportation.
Special provisions will be made for the transportation of men not to work at a new place of residence.

H. Appeals.
If directed to transfer to employment subsequent to interview, a man may, if he objects, enter appeal with a Court of Referees within 7 days of receiving such direction.

I. Penalties in Case of Employers.

THE STORY
The larger of the two police officers stepped forward. He removed his cap courteously and for the first time I saw the blunt square, handsome face and the gray, young eyes of Chief Deputy Sam Shaw.

CHAPTER V
"Mr. Krait?" I nodded. I knew from his voice that he was the man I had talked to over the phone. Briefly, I repeated what I had already told him and added, "I'll show you where the body is." But first I went to the main, who was carrying a doctor's case into the living room in Clint Mattison.

Then I got a raincoat and umbrella out of the hall closet and we went down the hall and into my study and through the French doors onto the east terrace.

I stood by silent and shivering.

THE FARMYARD

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

Of all the interesting places in the farmyard, YELLOW-haired Susie May loves the chickenyard. There is a RED rooster chicken house with GRAY (use BLACK light) tar paper on the outside. There is a YELLOW straw nest with two White eggs in it and two YELLOW perches above it. The chickenyard is fenced in with GRAY wire netting.

"See the little YELLOW chicks? The hen is white with a red comb and yellow legs and bill!" says Blue May. "I will throw some YELLOW corn on the BROWN ground and watch them pick it up!"

The grass is GREEN, and the bush is GREEN while the two officers looked at Derek Gray's body. The rain had splashed the light suit he wore with mud. Deputy Shaw knelt as I had done. He was careful not to touch the body.

I was trying to screw my courage up for the lie I must tell. I hadn't had much practice. Deputy Shaw saved me the trouble.

He looked up at the other officer and his eyes were bright. "Know who he is?"

The other officer shook his head. "Derek Gray. Wanted for kidnapping in Chicago. The circular on him came into the office yesterday." There was huge satisfaction in his tone.

He stood up then, explaining to me that they couldn't move the body until the coroner arrived.

Then the two of them examined the ground around the dead man. But the rain had beaten down the grass and obliterated all possibility of finding footprints. The stinky chief deputy cursed moodily under his breath. At length he suggested that I take him back to the house.

Clint Mattison had been put in an improvised shield. The doctor said he wanted X-rays taken before he set Mattison's arm and asked if it was all right to take him away.

Derek Shaw seemed undecided. He nudged his wrist wretchedly. "We received your telephone call at 1:10. How long before that was it that you discovered the body?"

I frowned in consternation. It must have been a minute or two after Connie had led me to Derek that I had stood there planning what to do.

It did seem like ages. Then Mattison had crashed in his glider. Connie had fainted. I had had to explain things to her amiable aviator, and he with his one good arm had helped me get Connie into the house. Then I had gone directly to the phone.

"Not more than 10 or 15 minutes at the most," I told Shaw.

He nodded his head and his eyes were curiously from face to face. We were all there in the living room. Clara and Sarah, their eyes bulging with curiosity, Miss Lake, she had pulled a twin to sleep and slipped back down stairs. (Clint Mattison, Connie, Kathy and I) could see that one was profile and one a full-face print of Derek. They had taken when he was in prison. There was a number under the Kathy. I remembered what I had told Kathy. If the police knew Derek was ... I stammered.

The maid, of course, had never seen Derek. She had never seen Lake and Connie had never seen Kathy. She leaned forward judging the picture with an odd absorbed curiosity. Over her shoulder I could see that one was profile and one a full-face print of Derek. They had taken when he was in prison. There was a number under the Kathy. I remembered what I had told Kathy. If the police knew Derek was ... I stammered.

"I don't know that man," Kathy was saying. She had handed the paper back to Shaw.

Added to my consternation over the blunder I had created was a queer sort of shock. Kathy had denied knowing Derek so convincingly. It made me wonder how many times she had fooled me as easily as she was fooling the chief deputy. And I had thought I knew Kathy as well.

The arrival of the coroner created a diversion. Clara let him in. He nodded to Shaw pleasantly and gave the rest of us a scowl. He was a thin man with a faint face and a small black eye. He and Shaw went out together to look at the body.

Connie sat up on the divan as the hall door closed on the two men. Two scarlet spots burned in her white cheeks and her eyes were strained. "Well, have to phone Walter at once."

I looked at her. "I don't see why we should bother him. You know he has an important directors meeting this week. Things weren't going any top well at the plant what with labor trouble and one thing and another."

"The police will soon take the body away and that's all there will be to it," I went on soothingly. Connie was leaving her handkerchief to sneeze. "Mother, I've got to have him here. I—I need him!"

VANCOUVER, June 12.—(CPI)—A victory garden saved a man charged with intoxication, of a jail term.

"I'd appreciate a suspended sentence because it would be inconvenient for me to go to jail just now for my victory garden needs all the attention I can give it," he told Magistrate Mackenzie Matheson yesterday.

"That's a refreshing argument," said the magistrate. "You may go."

REMEMBER the KIDDIES!

YOUR bid in this big Auction Sale goes a long way towards providing milk for unfortunate British children. In Britain today, there is only enough milk to supply 6 glasses per week for each child between 6 and 12 years of age. A pitifully small amount when medical authorities say growing children should have one full quart a day. Since the 101 cross-Canada Kinsmen clubs volunteered their efforts, 7,000,000 quarts of whole milk have been shipped overseas. YOUR bid at the Auction Sale Wednesday will add to this figure... let's ALL turn out and support this cause!

Coroner's jury Declares Death Was Accidental

A coroner's jury Friday found that John Graham came to his death at 7:20 p.m. June 8 as the result of falling out of a truck in motion which was driven by James McManis, 1540 46th street. The accident happened in the early hours of Sunday, June 8 on 68th street and cause of death was due to shock and multiple injuries, and damage to and collapse of the right lung. Death was considered accidental.

Dr. W. W. Edzie told the jury he had been called to the Royal Alexandra hospital, where he first saw Graham in the dressing room in a semi-conscious condition at 4 a.m. June 8. He sutured the injured man's arm, and on the following day, when Graham had recovered consciousness, an X-ray was taken, which showed several fractured ribs. The injured man afterwards collapsed, went into acute shock and died at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

DETAILS INQUIRY
Dr. Morton E. Hall, who performed a post-mortem, said he found fractures of the second and sixth ribs on the right side of the body. An X-ray showed tiny fractures of the seventh rib, a collapsed lung, multiple injuries of the liver and spleen. Death was caused by shock from multiple injuries, he told the jury.

Asked if a fall could have produced those injuries, the witness said he thought a wheel had passed over the body.

James McManis stated that there had been a party at his home on Saturday night, June 5. He thought it was between 11 and 12 p.m. when Graham came in the house. The latter had been known to him for five years, said McManis, and was a frequent visitor there.

Deciding to take Graham home, Graham was helped into the truck by himself and Turner, and the door closed after him. The others climbed into the truck with Turner in the middle and himself at the wheel.

When about a block away, he was told that Graham had fallen out of the truck and stopping, they number 68th street, where he was made as comfortable as possible on pillows in the house.

It was about an hour and a half after bringing him to the house that he decided it was necessary to get assistance, he stated.

He had not reported the accident to the police as he did not think the man was hurt. He did not know what time it was when they went to the hospital but he saw it was 4:30 a.m. Sunday when he returned home. He admitted he had no permission to take home the truck owned by his employer.

Edward Turner, residing at the rear of the previous witness' home, told of going to the party about 11:30 p.m. and was there before Graham arrived. He thought it was about 1 a.m. Sunday when the three went out to the truck. About three-quarters of a block away he saw Graham falling out, but could not grab hold of him. He called out to McManis to stop.

In front of the headlights he could see that the man's face was dirty and scratched. Graham was placed in the truck and taken back to the house.

Constable R. L. Dick told the jury that he had been advised of the accident by Dr. Edzie and that McManis came to the police station at 3:45 p.m. Tuesday, where he made a statement.

The inquest, held at Howard and McBride funeral home, was presided over by Dr. A. Kellor, coroner.

Members of the jury were A. E. Asher, foreman; John Hay, Francis, William, George, and W. Munro and J. W. Parks. Detective William McDonald, coroner's officer, conducted the enquiry.

Jail Population Reveals Decrease

Alberta's jail population has dropped 50 per cent in the last year. G. H. Monkman, deputy minister of public works, said on Saturday. The two provincial jails, at Fort Saskatchewan and Lethbridge, are maintained by the public works department of the government.

There are approximately 85 prisoners at Lethbridge, and 110 at Fort Saskatchewan. Mr. Monkman added: Under Hon. W. A. Palliser, minister, Mr. Monkman is supervisor of the penal institutions.

It is difficult to operate the farms connected with the jails, owing to the lack of labour. Mr. Monkman said the institutions are used to look after the vegetables and other crops, and the livestock.

An increased volume of employment is believed to be a major factor in reducing the number of prisoners in the jails. Because of the reduction in inmates, the number of guards has been much reduced.
